Consortium leader is the University of Hamburg. The Build4People project promotes sustainable buildings and sustainable urban development from a people-centred perspective.

Our innovative team works on a trans-disciplinary basis and develops innovative concepts based on proven scientific and regional expertise together with local partners, which directly target urban sustainability.

The connecting scientific-conceptual, analytical and superior normative bracket is always the notion of urban quality of life. Please, find more details at our project website: <https://build4people.org>.

Phnom Penh City Hall (PPCH) is the research partner of Work Package 3 “Sustainable Neighbourhoods” and implementation partner of the whole Build4People project.

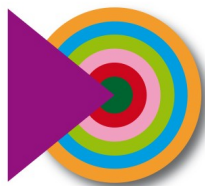

As documented within the Terms of References one key aim of the joint collaboration is to promote the concept of eco-town development.

OBJECTIVES:

The Build4People Roundtable Workshop aims to establish and to consolidate the cooperation with Phnom Penh Capital Hall (PPCH) as the most important implementation partner in Phnom Penh.

The goal is to elaborate and improve a mutual understanding of sustainable neighbourhood development in Phnom Penh and sustainable urban development in general.
